Call for Round Tables

In addition to Lumen International Conference Logos Universality Mentality Education Novelty (LUMEN 2013), the following round tables are organized:

Phototherapy and Video Interaction in Social Work Practice

The papers will be published in an extensive volume in one of our partner publishing houses for the round table section of the conference and not in the conference proceedings. The submission of papers is made via email at prlumen2@gmail.com with the specification For the Round Table Phototherapy and Video Interaction in Social Work Practice. The participant must also attach in this email his/her CV.

Challenges and Dilemmas in Current International Relations

Within this Round Table, communications will be presented in the domain of international relations; papers that present topics of interest regarding the new challenges of the current international relations will have priority: changes in the Middle East and Arab world; the global crisis; debt crisis in EU; the rise of China in international relations; the position of USA in the current geopolitics; bipolarism or multipolarism in international relations; the new strategy in international relations of Russia; EU – federal state or union of sovereign states; the issue of sovereignty in EU; the entry of Turkey and possible new enlargements waves of EU. The submission of papers is made via email at prlumen2@gmail.com with the specification For the Round Table Challenges and Dilemmas in Current International Relations. The participant must also attach in this email his/her CV.

The manner in which the Romanian state receives the democratic values after 1918 represents a sequence of the great European ideological debate on sustainability of the Western democratic model. Understood as a sum of modernized factors, the democratic values penetrate the Romanian society on multiple paths, colliding with identity models, which in turn are trying to block their influence, being able to speak in this respect about a confrontation between democracy and nationalism. Echoes of this confrontation will be pursued at different levels of the Romanian society, between 1918 and 1990, taking into account the historical and doctrinal dimension (political parties), the conceptual-organizational dimension (state institutions), the mental and cultural dimension (social representations, cultural-ideological projects).

The submission of papers is made via email at prlumen2@gmail.com with the specification For the Round Table Romania and the European Democratic Model between Assumption and Constetation. The participant must also attach in this email his/her CV.

The papers will be published in an extensive volume in one of our partner publishing houses for the round table section of the conference and not in the conference proceedings.

We invite persons interested in participating at round tables to propose a title and theme for this event at the following address: prlumen2@gmail.com.

Important!

The coordinator of a round table is also responsible for the coordination of the volume. The proposal or participation to a round table is conditioned by registering to Lumen International Conference Logos Universality Mentality Education Novelty (LUMEN 2013) with a paper (different from that included in the Round Table) to one of the sections: oral/ virtual/ poster. The papers will be published after they undergo a peer-review process. The papers submitted for a round table must be developed on the specific theme of each round table, as the papers published will be strictly correlated with this theme.
A round table will include between 10 and 15 papers. When submitting the proposal for a round table, the nominator must have at least 5 papers (from 5 different authors) for proposal; he will make the selection of the rest of participants to the round table together with the reviewers of the conference.
